

DAYTON WOMAN TELLS OF FLOOD

Mrs. Fred L. Virtue, Formerly of This City, Does Not Care to Repeat Recent Experience.

IS HERE VISITING SISTER

Water Forced Her to Seek Safety at Home of Friend—Husband Away at Time.

Mrs. Fred L. Virtue, formerly Miss Bertha Wilson of this city, and a sister of Mrs. Gus Wilkinson, arrived here yesterday from Dayton, Ohio. Mrs. Virtue tells a vivid story of the recent flood which almost destroyed Dayton. Her experience was one that she does not care to repeat. Mr. and Mrs. Virtue have lived in Dayton for the last seven years and the former local woman is well acquainted with the conditions as they really were.

Like almost all the cities that were visited by the flood, Dayton according to Mrs. Virtue, was taken by surprise and while the people always expect more or less high water in the spring they never once thought that it would be as it was. The water in the city reached the second floor of the buildings and three-fourths of the city was under water. The water reached the crest, according to Mrs. Virtue, on Wednesday afternoon, March 26. The people were first warned of the danger about four o'clock Tuesday morning. Mrs. Virtue lives only a block and a half from the river but the residence is on a terrace.

Even considering this on high ground Mrs. Virtue was compelled to leave her home and go to the home of a friend. There was one foot of water in her home but luckily Mrs. Virtue was warned in time and very little damage was done. It was not possible to get back to the house until the following afternoon. Mr. Virtue is a traveling salesman and was away from home at the time of the flood. Mr. Virtue got as far as Tiffin, Ohio, and did not arrive in Dayton until the following Saturday.

"The people in Dayton," said Mrs. Virtue, "are fighting a hard battle, but have not lost courage and will win out. The merchants are all doing business. The firms that were damaged have opened up shop on the second floor of their buildings, but it will be many months before the city fully recovers. For almost two weeks we had no gas or electricity and the city was in total darkness. The people were compelled to burn candles. We were not allowed out of our homes after six o'clock in the evening unless on urgent business, and then it was necessary to get an order.

"The principal places where the refugees were sheltered were the National Cash Register plant and the Presbyterian church near my home. The National plant did not burn as was reported, and the only fire damage was one block of business houses. The fire started in a drug store and spread very rapidly. It was a frightful scene, the reflection of the fire upon the water and in the sky. I was never so glad of anything in the world as I was to get away from Dayton. It does not look like the Dayton I knew. The resident portion looks so vacant with all the barns and sheds washed away. Practically all the houses are without verandas.

"I think one of the causes for the water coming as far back into the city as it did is the fact that the city has five large concrete bridges across the river, and as none of these bridges, with the exception of a rail-

TO RELIEVE COMRADES

Joel Wolfe Post G. A. R. Votes $10 for Indianapolis Veterans.

A called meeting of Joel Wolfe Post No. 81, G. A. R., was held at the Court house yesterday afternoon for the purpose of voting ten dollars for the relief of comrades who were in West Indianapolis when the flood submerged the place. The attendance was large and the vote in favor of the relief was unanimous. Jabez Smith received an appeal from headquarters day before yesterday and immediately called a meeting to consider the question. It was reported to him that G. A. R. posts all over Indiana are assisting.

CHECK ON PARCEL POST THIS WEEK

Account of Incoming Packages at the Postoffice is Being Kept This Week.

ORDERS FROM WASHINGTON

According to orders from the postoffice department received by Postmaster Charles Frazee, a check on all incoming parcel post packages is being kept this week. The first figures regarding the volume of business in this department were made at the close of the first fifteen days of January, just after the law went into force. The postoffice department has asked all offices in the United States to keep an account this week so that it will be possible to ascertain the increase or decrease of business.

Since the trains are running again the parcel post business has been heavier than usual. Many packages were delayed for some time when the trains quit running and such mail was the last to be sent out. Quite a large number of parcel post packages were received this morning and it is believed that the business is about normal.

WOULD PREVENT TYPHOID FEVER

Rushville Physicians Receive Order of Typhoid Vaccine Because Many People Asked For it.

FOR IMMUNIZING PURPOSES

Many Fear City Water Was Infected and Want Guard Against Diseases—Tests Made.

A few Rushville physicians have received a quantity of typho-bacterin, better known as typhoid vaccine, to administer to people who wish to guard against typhoid fever. The fear that some cases of typhoid fever may result because of the recent flood, when it is thought some flood water was pumped into the city mains from one of the wells in the river bottoms, has lead many Rushville people to inquire about a preventative.

This resulted in some physician ordering the typhoid vaccine. One physician received a batch of it today. There are three treatments of the vaccine, one to be given every ten days.

The vaccine is merely to make people immune from the disease and is used in the same respect as all vaccines. Vaccines for diphtheria and smallpox are the only ones that have been used very frequently here. Remarkable results have been obtained from the use of typhoid vaccine as a preventative, and it is now being used to some extent in the treatment of the disease.

One of the most recent tests of typho-bacterin was made in the United States army. The surgeon-general reported 11,771 cases of vaccination against typhoid fever, in which the number of moderate and severe reactions were very small, while of the total number vaccinated there have developed to date three cases of typhoid fever, with no deaths. In accordance with the general orders of the war department, the typhoid vaccine is administered now to all recruits under thirty-five years of age.

"Few people know," said a Rushville physician today, "that more men died from typhoid fever in the Spanish-American war than were killed in battle. The sanitary methods used in the Japanese army was responsible for the Japan's victory over Russia. The Japs kept their soldiers on edge in such physical condition that they were keen for war all the time. Every soldier was required to drink boiled water. Violation of the order was summarily dealt with."

President Taft in an address before the Medical Club of Philadelphia, May 4, 1911, speaking of sanitary achievements and the immunizing value of typho-bacterin during the present mobilization of troops on the Mexican border, said: "The percentage of typhoid cases (in the Spanish-American War) was so high that it is hard to believe of 120,000 men there were 20,000 cases, with a case mortality of 7 per cent. Of the volunteer regiments mobilized during the Spanish-American War 90 per cent. became infected with typhoid fever within eight weeks from the date of mobilization. Today, two months after mobilization, with the modern health regulations and by the use of vaccination against typhoid, not one case of typhoid fever has appeared in the entire force, except that of one teamster who was not vaccinated. It is hard to credit the accuracy of such a record, but, as I have it directly from the war office, I can assert it as one more instance of the marvelous efficacy of recent medical discoveries and practice."

State Superintendent Urges Teachers to Make Arbor Day Time for Cleaning up Schools.

ADDRESSES LETTER TO THEM

Besides Planting Trees Pupils Are Exhorted to Beautify Grounds at School and Home.

Following the action of Governor Ralston in issuing a proclamation designating the third Friday in April as Arbor Day, Charles A. Greathouse, State superintendent of public instruction has issued an appeal to school officials of the State to participate in an observance of the day and "to foster in the minds of school children a sentiment not only for preserving and protecting birds, plants and trees, but for co-operating with all movements to make cleaner and more attractive surroundings.

Mr. Greathouse is also addressing a letter to the pupils of the public themselves "in some active way not only with the observance of this special day, but with this great work at all times of the year." Besides planting trees, flowers, vines and shrubs and protecting birds, Mr. Greathouse urges that the pupils interest themselves in beautifying the grounds about their homes and school buildings.

Attention is directed to a bird and Arbor day book to be issued to the pupils early in the fall. Several Indiana authors and artists will contribute to the publication.

Mr. Greathouse's statement, addressed to the school teachers of the State, reads as follows:

"The Sixty-eighth General Assembly of Indiana, appreciating the great need of conserving our natural resources, enacted a law designating the third Friday in April of each year to be observed as Arbor day.

"In harmony with this action and in accordance with the proclamation of our governor, Hon. Samuel M. Ralston, in which Friday April 18th, is named as the day to be observed in 1913, I hereby earnestly urge of all the school officials of Indiana to participate in the observance of this special day by appropriate exercises in the schools by planting of suitable trees, vines and shrubs on and about the school grounds, and by a special effort to create and foster in the minds of the young people a sentiment not only for preserving and protecting birds, plants and trees, but for co-operating with all movements to make cleaner and more attractive surroundings."

C. S. Lee Arranges For Meeting in Hammond Tonight.

Clifford S. Lee, formerly of this city, who is now acting as assistant secretary of the Indiana Manufacturers' and Shippers' association is in Hammond to ascertain the sentiment among employers of labors and shippers regarding proposed legislation fattered by the state association. The employers' liability and workmen's compensation question has engrossed the state organization for four years. He has arranged for a meeting in Hammond tonight when the topics will be discussed.

FIVE BOYS AT PLAINFIELD

They Cost Rush County $202.56 For Six Months.

According to the semi-annual report of Guy Hanna, superintendent of the Indiana Boys school at Plainfield, Rush county is represented by five boys at the school. The cost to the county for keeping the five boys for the six-months period was $202.56. The state pays half to the support of the institution and the counties the other half. The total cost of maintenance for the period was $48,766.22.

LETTING OF SCHOOL CONTRACT HELD UP

Officials Believe Provisions Are Made by Law When Building is to Replace One That Burned.

TRYING TO REACH GREATHOUSE

The awarding of the contract for the new school building at Milroy has been held up until the Anderson township authorities can get in communication with Charles A. Greathouse, state superintendent of public instruction. The lowest estimate presented yesterday was a few thousand dollars higher than the appropriation which is all the township can expend at this time for a school house. It is believed by the authorities that the law makes different provision about the limit of bonded indebtedness when the school building is to replace one destroyed by fire.

BROOKVILLE GETS SHARE OF $80,000

Further Evidence That County Seat of Franklin Was One of Hardest Hit in the State.

RED CROSS WILL SEND $15,000

That Brookville was harder hit by the flood than any other city in Indiana, population considered, is further evidenced by the division of the Red Cross relief among the flooded cities of the state. Only one other city is to receive more of the $80,000 allotted to Indiana than Brookville, and that is Peru which is a much larger place. Peru gets $20,000, Brookville $15,000, Terre Haute $15,000, Logansport $15,000, Lawrenceburg $10,000, Mt. Vernon $5,000. This money will be forwarded in a few days and will be used only to rehabilitate homes. A representative of the Red Cross will be sent to Brookville in a few days.

TO START SERVICE.

It was announced at the I. & C. general offices here today that service on the Shelbyville division of the I. & C. would be started some time today. The interurban line was damaged by the flood more on that division than on the local one.

The Modern Woodmen will confer the Beneficial degree on two candidates tonight, also a matter involving several hundred dollars to the Camp will be fully explained and discussed. Every member is requested to be present and learn the facts at firsthand, so that he may be able to consider the matter intelligently and fairly.

PRESIDENT LETS PROF. MOORE OUT

Head of Weather Bureau Is Summarily Discharged.

IRREGULARITIES IN OFFICE

The Charge Is Made That Willis L. Moore, For Many Years Director of Affairs of the Weather Bureau, Had Used His Office to Promote His Candidacy For a Cabinet Position, and President Takes Action.

Washington, April 17.—For alleged irregularities in the conduct of his office, President Wilson has summarily dismissed Willis L. Moore, chief of the United States weather bureau. At the same time the president suspended Charles P. Burns, foreman of the weather bureau printing office, and took official cognizance of an investigation now under way which may result in the removal of a number of employees on the ground that they have been "unduly active in using the public service for private and personal ends."

The "private and personal ends" referred to, it is officially admitted, were the furtherance of a campaign for the appointment of Moore as secretary of agriculture in the Wilson cabinet. The charges of gross irregularities made against the weather bureau chief relate to the same activity. Secretary of Agriculture Houston acknowledges that these charges against the weather bureau chief are of such grave nature that the department of justice has been called upon to investigate them. No details in regard to the charges are officially given except that they grow out of Mr. Moore's efforts in his own behalf to land a cabinet job. There is pending in congress a resolution calling for an investigation into the conduct of Professor Moore's bureau.

Professor Moore has issued a statement in which he says that "it is the same old influences that attempted to displace and remove Dr. Harvey W. Wiley without letting him see the charges or confront his accusers that are now driving me from the public service. Literally third degree methods were applied to my friends in the weather bureau under such penalties that they did not even dare to speak to me, and then a report was made to the president that had for its object the driving of me in disgrace from a service where I had an honorable career for over a third of a century. I brand as an infamous falsehood the intimation that any man in the weather bureau has been coerced into supporting me for the secretaryship, any man promoted for serving me, or a dollar of public money expended in the interest of my candidacy."

THE POPE'S END IS NEAR

All Actions at the Vatican Point to This Conclusion.

Rome, April 17.—The pope's weakness is gradually increasing, but he has no fever. The action of the heart is being sustained by hourly hypodermic injections. It is evident that his strong constitution is enabling him to make a strong fight against death. It is very difficult to obtain any definite news as to the patient's condition. The precautions to prevent information leaking out have been increased to an extraordinary extent and the vatican is now practically as a fortress which is beleaguered by an enemy. This secrecy increases the belief that the pope's end is near.

Premier Gioiello arrived today from Turin, where he has been on a vacation. He came back a week ahead of the time he was expected to return. Before the premier left on his holiday Professor Marchiafava promised that he would warn him in ample time to allow him to reach Rome before the end. The doctor is a state functionary.

Two regiments of infantry are in the barracks near the vatican to do police duty in St. Peter's square on the death of the pope, when the cardinals and diplomats are summoned. Patriarca, the noted lawyer who drew up the will of Pope Leo XIII., was summoned to the vatican yesterday, and the general inference is that he was called to perform the same office for Pius X.

THE EVENT ASSUMES A GRAVE CHARACTER

Franco-German Situation Growing More Strained.

Paris, April 17.—The recent incident at Nancy, where Germans who had hissed a theatrical burlesque on the German army were rushed out of the theater, or rather the tone of the speech of Herr Von Jagow, the German foreign secretary in the reichstag, has affected the bourse, having a counteracting effect on the confidence that approaching peace in the Balkans would have had. The papers here continue to print every irritating comment that can be found in the German press, while their own versions minimize the insults offered to the Germans, which they say contained nothing whatever to justify the words of Baron Von Schoen, the German ambassador, that "if it is true that Germans have been struck, forced to kneel and salute French officers who passed without taking notice of them, as has been printed, then the event assumes a grave character."

Such details are not found in the stories in the French papers of the incident. It is the general conclusion that whatever happened the recent Franco-German incidents are most regrettable; that they are but sparks in a somewhat loaded atmosphere.

APPORTIONMENT OF RELIEF FUND

Red Cross Makes Distribution
In Indiana.

USED FOR REHABILITATION

Director Bicknell of the American National Red Cross Has Arranged For Disbursement of Society's Funds to Repair the Heaviest Losses in Indiana Communities That Were the Worst Hit by the Recent Flood.

Indianapolis, April 17.—After having arranged for a distribution of $80,000 among six Indiana cities which were seriously damaged by the recent flood, Ernest P. Bicknell, director of the American National Red Cross, has returned to Columbus, Ohio. The money is to be used to rehabilitate flood-damaged homes.

Governor Ralston will draw on a state relief fund, representing contributions of this and other states, which now amounts to about $60,000, in providing for other towns in need of help in addition to those which are to receive Red Cross money. Whether additional Red Cross money is sent into the state after the governor has exhausted the fund at his command will depend on developments.

Before leaving Indianapolis Mr. Bicknell said that he probably will return to Indiana next week. He will spend several days in Ohio in distributing money among the cities affected by the high waters. Forty-nine Ohio towns, he said, are to receive aid.

"Indiana was hard hit by the flood, but the damage here is small in comparison with Ohio," said Mr. Bicknell.

From the Red Cross fund the following cities will be cared for and the amount set opposite the following cities will be forwarded to the proper local treasurer within a few days: Peru, $20,000; Brookville, $15,000; Lawrenceburg, $10,000; Logansport, $15,000; Mt. Vernon (for Posey county), $5,000; Terre Haute, $15,000. The Red Cross already has sent money to a few Indiana towns and various amounts have been sent to several of the towns by the governor.

No Red Cross money will be sent to Indianapolis unless the need for it becomes apparent later, because members of the local relief committee have informed Mr. Bicknell and the governor that the situation will be met locally, though a considerable sum of money is yet needed.

RETAIL MERCHANTS MEET

Mail Order Encroachments the Subject of Discussion.

Indianapolis, April 17.—Retail merchants who came to attend the meeting of the Retail Business Men's association heard addresses by J. A. Green of Cleveland, secretary of the national association, and others prominent in the retail business of the country.

Mr. Green declared that the retail merchant must awaken and combat the energetic work of the mail order houses which for years have been steadily encroaching on the retailers' field. He explained that the mail order houses put an absolute, ironbound guarantee on their products which stimulates the confidence of the consumer. He said that it is up to the retailer to use the same tactics if he wishes to combat the mail order concern successfully.

Mr. Green pointed out the value of merchants' associations in fighting business evils and cited some of the work that associations have done in the past in obtaining legislation beneficial to retailers.

Laporte, Ind., April 17.—Alleging that she is a daughter of the late J. B. Gifford, who died leaving an estate of $500,000 in addition to the Gifford road, in progress of construction, Regina Burris, a sixteen-year-old girl of Rensselaer, has taken the preliminary steps in the filing of a contest of the wealthy Indian's will. The will of Mr. Gifford gave Miss Burris $5,000. If it is broken the young woman will come into possession of a large part of the estate. Attorneys for Miss Burris say that they are in possession of a letter written by Gifford, in which acknowledgment is made that she is his daughter. The documents promise to furnish the sensation of the trial.

DEMOCRATIC CAUCUS FAVORS FREE WOOL

President's Program Supported By Big Majority.

Washington, April 17.—In the Democratic house caucus President Wilson was accused of resorting to coercion to force his legislative colleagues to support the Underwood tariff bill. In an indirect way the charge was made that the president had threatened to withhold patronage from members who failed to support the administration tariff program and to go into the districts of such members as had the temerity actively to oppose the Underwood bill.

Those who made the charges employed polite terms and addressed their remarks to Chairman Underwood and the other Democratic members of the ways and means committee. Everybody understood, however, that the attack was made on President Wilson.

The trouble was over the wool schedule and the debate disclosed that many Democrats are exceedingly bitter over President Wilson's part in the framing of the tariff bill and his insistence that raw wool and sugar should be admitted without duty.

When all was said the caucus voted on the free wool proposition advocated by President Wilson and adopted it—190 to 42. Despite the overwhelming vote for free wool, it was plain that many Democrats supported the proposal, either out of fear or loyalty to the administration.

Representative Underwood made a speech in which he defended the bill, and he urged all members of the party to stand by the measure as it had been approved by the administration. He said that the bill represented a fair compromise, that it was in the main equitable to all interests concerned, and that in his opinion it would be approved by the country. Mr. Underwood was wildly applauded and when he had concluded the advocates of dutiable wool knew that they were beaten.

The chances are that the caucus will finish consideration of the bill Saturday night.

Why Salves Can't Cure Eczema

Since the old-fashioned theory of curing eczema through the blood has been given up by scientists, many different salves have been tried for skin diseases. But it has been found that these salves only clog the pores and cannot penetrate to the inner skin below the epidermis where the eczema germs are lodged. This—the quality of penetrating—probably explains the tremendous success of the well known liquid eczema remedy, oil of wintergreen, thymol, glycerine, etc., as compounded in D.D.D. Prescription.

Finding it Some Task.

The Democratic administration in the nation, whose first program is to write a new tariff bill at a special session of congress, is finding it a much larger task than was probably anticipated. Woodrow Wilson has probably overcome some big things in life else he would not be where he is, but it is doubtful if he was ever up against anything quite so stiff as forcing congress to make a tariff bill that will coincide with his views.

Mr. Wilson may be a tactician, but it will require one who knows all the fine points of the game to bring together amicably all of the malicious forces in the Democratic party alone that are working to defeat him. Thus far the President seems to have the situation well in hand, but he is not through yet. The bill has not been passed. And if it is passed, it will be because he dominated congress and compelled it.

The sectional influences are at work. The man who is against free sugar cares not what else is placed on the list. And the Louisiana congressman or senator who does not fight the free-sugar-in-three-years scheme, he is very diligently digging his own grave. His constituents get their livelihood from the sugar indus-

What Our Neighbors Are Talking About

(Fort Wayne News.)

How circumstances do alter their cases! Here a few months ago we had before us the spectacle of William H. Lorimer being expelled from the United States senate because it was alleged certain men who had voted for his election had been paid to do so. It was not charged that Lorimer himself paid the price of perjury, or that it was his money, or that he ever so much as knew it had been paid. Indeed, it was conceded that personally he was innocent. Yet he was pilloried with fine scorn by the Pharisees of the senate and many of the senators loudly proclaimed their immaculate views not only by votes, but by tlamboyant speeches. It was, indeed, from beginning to end a sanctimonious parade of the piety and virtue of a lot of soidant patriots who desired the country to take note of the fact that they were too good to sit in the same chamber with the unspeakable Lorimer.

Yet today we see these same senators, with troubled brows and uneasy eyes, frenziedly striving to protect from a hideous exposure one of their own number. This lewd fellow, who has been during his entire career in the senate particularly conspicuous by his howlings for reform, progress and civic virtue, is charged with having attempted to commit a criminal assault upon a decent woman who came to his office upon business. The charge is made not in an affidavit by the insulted woman, but in other affidavits by reputable people whose arrival at the office interrupted the brute and saved his victim. These affidavits have been presented to the officer of the senate and have been refused recognition. The very body that could not stand Lorimer, whose spotless private life has ever been above challenge or question, refuse to take cognizance of a terrible charge against another member—a charge of attempted criminal assault. What if the man "wasn't exactly himself" when the thing occurred? Is this to constitute immunity for a "reform senator" to practice offenses for which negroes are lynched and ordinary white men sent to prison? The country would really like to know. For if proclaiming one's self a child of light and a foe of wrong is to license one to indulge in drunkenness, riotous conduct, and bestial assaults upon defenseless women, we are likely to witness the rendering asunder of the penitentiary walls by pious protestations of righteousness on the part of dangerous criminals. If however, men are to be weighed by their conduct and not by their words, then the country wishes to see the United States senate instituting another investigation as to the character and quality of its membership. This smug-faced hypocrisy that seeks to screen a lecherous scoundrel from the consequences of his brutal crime simply because he is "one of the grandest little reformers and champion of the people," is calculated to make the average citizen feel like getting a good big bomb and pitching it from the senate gallery into the polluted pit.

MAKING IT PAY.

(Muncie Press.)

The Muncie Star is published by the same interest which own the Indianapolis Star, but while the Indianapolis Star talks of prohibitory legislation as impractical and unreasonable, the local branch of the same institution preaches suppression of the liquor traffic with an impressive affectation of sincerity. When it is remembered that both the Indianapolis Star and its suburban satellites at Muncie and Terre Haute are organs of the same political party, that all of them are owned by the same corporation and have their editorial policies directed from the same source, all the evidence necessary to convince the reasonable observer is at hand to show that the mainspring of the moral and intellectual process of the state organs of bullmoosism is to be found in local expedience. And to think that these are the organs of a movement professing superior virtue and a larger zeal for the right than appertains to the wicked newspapers and politicians of the old parties!

But it is not necessary to contrast the policies of the various branches of the Star league in order to get a good square view of the sincerity of the local organ of the uplift. Tuesday's local satellite in the great bullmoose constellation contains a vehement editorial on "The Liquor Fight." A full column is used up in lambasting the rum demon. "The Battle of Human Righteousness" piously remarks this pulpit of progress, "has gone on for years and years at the Plain of Morality, the enemy has been flanked at both right and left wings, and today, skirmishes long since emerging into battles to the death, the whole column of the liquor interests is centered in holding its own against the terrific onslaughts that public opinion and an awakened civic conscience are making in the advance toward humanity's betterment."

DECIDE TO PURCHASE LAND

Trustees of Richmond Hospital Prepare For Colony Plan.

At the meeting of the board of trustees of the eastern Indiana hospital for the insane, of which J. L. Cowing of this city is a member, at Richmond this week, it was decided to buy a tract of land near Centerville, Wayne county, to establish a colony in connection with the hospital. A condemnation suit had to be carried through and a price fixed by a circuit court jury before the land could be acquired. The plan of treating the insane patients by the colony plan is the idea of Dr. S. E. Smith superintendent of the hospital.

CHAPTER XXVI.

Sweetwater Returns.

"You see me again, Miss Scott. I hope that yesterday's intrusion has not prejudiced you against me."

"I have no prejudices," was her simple but firm reply. "I am only hurried and very anxious. The doctor is with Mr. Brotherson just now; but he has several other equally sick patients to visit and I dare not keep him here too long."

"Then you will welcome my abruptness. Miss Scott, here is a letter from Mr. Challoner. It will explain my position. As you will see, his only desire is to establish the fact that his daughter did not commit suicide. You have seen Miss Challoner, I believe. Do you think she was the woman to plunge a dagger in her heart in a place as public as a hotel reception room?"

"No, Mr. Sweetwater. I saw her once and it made me want to be quiet and kind and beautiful like her. I never shall think she did anything so horrible. Nor will Mr. Brotherson ever believe it. He could not and live. You see, I am talking to you as if you knew him—the kind of man he is and just how he feels towards Miss Challoner. He is—"

Her voice trailed off and a look, uncommon and almost elevated, illumined her face. "I will not tell you what he is; you will know, if you ever see him."

Sweetwater watched her for a moment, and then remarked: "I'm going to take one thing for granted; that you are as anxious as we are to clear Miss Challoner's memory."

"O yes, O yes."

"More than that, that you are ready and eager to help us. Your very looks show that."

"You are right; I would do anything to help you. But what can a girl like me do? Nothing; nothing. I know too little. Mr. Challoner must see that when you tell him I'm only the daughter of a foreman."

"And a friend of Mr. Brotherson," supplemented Sweetwater.

"Yes," she smiled, "he would want me to say so. But that's his goodness. I don't deserve the honor."

"His friend and therefore his confidante," Sweetwater continued. "He has talked to you about Miss Challoner?"

"He had to. There was nobody else to whom he could talk; and then, I had seen her and could understand."

"Where did you see her?"

"In New York. I was there once with father, who took me to see her. I think she had asked Mr. Brotherson to send his little friend to her hotel if ever we came to New York."

"That was some time ago?"

"We were there in June."

"And you have corresponded ever since with Miss Challoner?"

"She has been good enough to write, and I have ventured at times to answer her."

Smiling a little, but in a very earnest fashion, he pointed to the letter she still held and quietly said:

"Remember that I'm not speaking for myself, Miss Scott, when I seem a little too persistent and inquiring. You have corresponded with Miss Challoner; you have been told the fact of her secret engagement to Mr. Brotherson and you have been witness to his conduct and manner for the whole time he has been separated from her. Do you, when you think of it carefully, recall anything in the whole story of this romance which would throw light upon the cruel tragedy which has so unexpectedly ended?"

it? Anything, Miss Scott? "Staves show which way the stream flows."

She was vehement, instantly vehement, in her disclaimer.

"I can answer at once," said she, "because I have thought of nothing else for all these weeks. Here all was well. Mr. Brotherson was hopeful and happy and believed in her happiness and willingness to wait for his success. And this success was coming so fast! Oh, how can we ever tell him! How can we ever answer his questions even, or keep him satisfied and calm until he is strong enough to hear the truth. I've had to acknowledge already that I have had no letter from her for weeks. She never wrote to him directly, you know, and she never sent him messages, but he knew that a letter to me was also a letter to him and I can see that he is troubled by this long silence, though he says I was quite right not to let him know of his illness and that I must continue to keep her in ignorance of it till he is quite well again and can write to her himself. It is hard to hear him talk like this and not look sad or frightened."

Sweetwater remembered Miss Challoner's last letter, and wished he had it here to give her. In default of this, he said:

"Perhaps this not hearing may act in the way of a preparation for the shock which must come to him sooner or later. Let us hope so, Miss Scott."

Her eyes filled.

"Nothing can prepare him," said she. Then added, with a yearning accent, "I wish I were older or had more experience. I should not feel so helpless. But the gratitude I owe him will give me strength when I need it most. Only I wish the suffering might be mine rather than his."

Unconscious of any self-betrayal, she lifted her eyes, starting Sweetwater by the beauty of her look.

"I don't think I'm so sorry for Oswald Brotherson," he murmured to himself as he left her. "He's a more fortunate man than he knows, however deeply he may feel the loss of his first sweetheart."

That evening the disappointed Sweetwater took the train for New York. He had failed to advance the case in hand one whit, yet the countenance he showed Mr. Gryce at their first interview was not a wholly gloomy one.

"Fifty dollars to the bad!" was his first laconic greeting. "All I have learned is comprised in these two statements. The second O. B. is a fine fellow; and not intentionally the cause of our tragedy. He does not even know about it. He's down with the fever at present and they haven't told him. When he's better we may hear something; but I doubt even that."

"Tell me about it." Sweetwater complied; and such is the unconsciousness with which we often encounter the pivotal circumstance upon which our future or the future of our most cherished undertaking hangs, he omitted from his story the sole discovery which was of any real importance in the unraveling of the mystery in which they were so deeply concerned. He said nothing of his walk in the woods or of what he saw there.

CHAPTER XXVII.

The Image of Dread.

In the comfortable little sitting-room of the Scott cottage Doris stood, looking eagerly from the window which gave upon the road. Behind her, on the other side of the room, could be seen through a partly opened door, a neatly spread bed, with a hand lying quietly on the patched coverlid. Several weeks had passed since the departure of Sweetwater and the invalid was fast gaining strength. Tomorrow, he would be up.

Was Doris thinking of him? Undoubtedly, for her eyes often flashed his way; but her main attention was fixed upon the road, though no one was in sight at the moment. Some one had passed for whose return she looked; some one whom, if she had been asked to describe, she would have called a tall, fine-looking man of middle age, of a cultivated appearance seldom seen in this small manufacturing town; seldom seen, possibly, in any town. He had glanced up at the window as he went by, in a manner too marked not to excite her curiosity. Would he look up again when he came back? She was waiting there to see. Why, she did not know. She was not used to indulging in petty suppositions of this kind; her life was too busy, her anxieties too keen. The great dread looming ever before her—the dread of that hour when she must speak—left her very little heart for anything dissociated with this coming event.

But her interest had been caught today, caught by this stranger, and when during her eager watch the Small messenger from the Works came to the door with the usual daily supply of books and magazines for the patient, she stepped out on the porch to speak to him and to point out the gentleman who was now rapidly returning from his stroll up the road.

"Who is that, Johnny?" she asked. The boy looked, searched his memory, not without some show of misgiving.

"A queer name," he admitted at last. Shally something. Shally—Shally—"

"Challoner?" "Yes, that's it. How could you guess? He's from New York. Don't seem to have no business."

"Well, never mind. Run on, Johnny. And don't forget to come earlier tomorrow; Mr. Brotherson gets tired waiting."

"Does he? I'll come quick then; quick as I can run." And he sped off at a pace which promised well for the morrow.

Challoner! There was but one Challoner in the world for Doris Scott—Edith's father. Was this he? It must be, or why this haunting sense of something half remembered as she caught a glimpse of his face. Edith's father! and he was approaching, approaching rapidly, on his way back to town. She had not closed the door; something within—a hope or a dread—had prevented that. Would he take it as an invitation to come in? No, no; she was not ready for such an encounter yet. He might speak Edith's name; Oswald might hear and—with a gasp she recognized the closeness of his step; heard it lag, almost halt just where the path to the house ran into the roadside. But it passed on.

Hunt For a Hangman.

The British army was once in difficulties through the lack of a hangman. Murder was committed by a soldier in the Crimea, but nobody could be found to carry out the sentence of the court martial. It was announced that £20 and a free discharge would be granted to the man undertaking the task. At last a man did volunteer. He was a newcomer to the army. On the night prior to the date fixed for the execution they looked up the hangman in a stable to keep him safe. In the morning the party at the gallows waited, but there was no hangman. He had gone mad during the night or else he was now simulating madness. The officer in command turned to one of his captains with, "Captain, you will have the goodness to hang the prisoner." The captain changed countenance, but he pulled himself together and appeared to the sergeants with, "Which of you will hang this man?" And to spare his captain one of the men volunteered. He afterward had the satisfaction of flogging the man who had volunteered and failed.—London Standard.

Found the Sneeze.

The overanxious father of three charming daughters, after his family had sought seclusion for the night, caught somewhere in the distance the echo of a sneeze.

At once, in dressing gown and slippers, he padded down the hall and knocked at the nearest door.

"Jane, my dear, did you sneeze?"

"No, papa."

Tap-tap at the adjoining door.

"Mary, my love, was that you sneezing?"

"No, indeed, papa dear."

Pad-pad to the door at the end of the corridor.

"Margaret, my pet, I heard a sneeze. Was it you?"

"Oh, no, papa, dearest."

Just then the guest room door, half-way down the corridor, opened a hand's breadth, and the mild voice of an old lady guest, who had retired early, issued forth:

"I am extremely sorry, Mr. Brown: it was I who sneezed."—New York Sun.

Advocates of State Aid For Roads Say It Is Only Method

Terminal points are the really important factors in determining the value of a good road to a community or to a state. A good road that begins nowhere and ends nowhere may be a matter of pride to those living along it, and of envy to those who do not; but its practical value must be determined by the condition of the highways which connect the improved section of road with the city or other center where the commercial interests of the community converge.

It is not unusual, in several different states, to find isolated sections of brick, or macadam, or gravel roads which have been constructed some in the past by the local authorities with the expectation that the adjacent township would continue the improvement to the county seat, or to whatever center it was desired to reach. Indiana and Iowa especially abound in such "patches"; and in either of those or any of many other states money enough is spent annually to establish a good highway system in the course of a very few years, if it were administered properly.

It was only after several years of struggle that New Jersey, which was first to adopt state aid, was enabled to so direct the location of state aid roads that they would connect at county lines and form through routes. In the early history of state aid all the states met with the same difficulty. In more recent laws this difficulty is obviated by making the location subject to the approval of the state highway department. The new state aid roads law of Wisconsin (1911) is a conspicuous example in this respect. It recognizes the importance of locating the roads designed for improvement so that county seats, large centers of population and other important points can be reached by continuous roads. Without a central authority this result could not be effected.

In the matter of bridges a centralized authority, such as is usually vested in a state highway department, is absolutely essential in the interests of ordinary economy. Good roads, intended for modern traffic, requires strong substantial bridges which will carry the traffic of the present and the anticipated traffic of the future. It is within the memory of every person approaching middle age that thousands of counties and towns paid enormous prices (and were swindled outrageously) for slender iron or steel bridges which would not carry a traction engine, let alone a road roller. A number of states even passed laws requiring the drivers of threshing engines to block up such bridges to make them safe, before attempting to pass over them.

Under adequate systems of state aid, plans and specifications for all bridges are prepared by the state highway department, which also must approve all contracts and inspect and approve all work before payment is made. This insures the right kind of bridges for given locations. Not only are the plans drawn for structures which will carry the present and prospective traffic, but, being prepared by competent engineers who are working in the interest of ultimate as well as immediate results, they are so prepared as to withstand all probable exigencies of storm floods, wash-outs, overflows and the like.

With state aid and state supervision of road and bridge construction a much higher grade of work is secured than when the contracting and supervision is left to the county or township. Contractors who might take advantage of inexperienced county or township officials would rarely attempt to deceive state engineers either in their bids, the workmanship, or the quality of materials furnished.

It is the business of a state highway department to make a study of whatever road materials there may be in the state, and by careful and thorough tests determine the value of each from a standard of actual usefulness in a given locality. Gravel where good gravel is plenty, might be used more economically than broken stone. The state highway department should have facilities for testing all kinds of materials so as to determine which would be the cheapest in the long run. Not all kinds of stone make good roads, and it is the duty of the engineers of a state highway department to prevent the expenditure of public funds for roads built of improper materials.

In fact, every conceivable factor involved in the betterment of the roads of any state rests upon the primary importance of a central highway authority such as would be vested in a state highway commission or commissioner.

And what applies to a state in this respect is equally applicable to the nation as a whole, which in years to come is bound to supplement and enlarge the work of the state.

Correcting Family Speech.

A Cleveland man who makes a practice of choosing his words with care, a practice which he has endeavored to instill into the family circle, made a memorandum of the misused words uttered by his son and daughter during a recent breakfast. Here is the result:

Elegant, nineteen times.
Awful, eleven times.
Dandy, six times.
Fierce, four times.
Great, two times.

When the meal was over the head of the household called the family around him in the library and gravely read the totals to them.

"Gee, that's fierce!" said the son.

"Isn't it awful!" said the daughter.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Stage Money.

Stage money—that is, money of no value off the stage—is first said to have been used by David Garrick in the eighteenth century. The money is said to have been made by the wealthy actor-manager so as to look actually like real money. There was little money, even of this counterfeit kind, used in the days of Shakespeare because of the scarcity of any kind of money, particularly among actors.

Much More So.

"Is there anything more exasperating," asks an exchange, "than a bureau drawer that has constitutional objections to closing up after it has been opened?" Yea, verily, brother—to wit, a bureau drawer that has constitutional objections to being opened after it's been closed.—Chicago News.

Supremely Exasperating.

"Don't you think Mrs. Spurrell has an awful temper?" "She has, but can you blame the poor woman? She has a husband who just absolutely won't get mad at all."

Dear, Indeed!

"The dear, dear girls!" exclaimed Mrs. Pawkins, looking at her fashionable daughters enthusiastically.

"Yes, the dear, dear girls!" muttered Mr. Pawkins despondently.

Had to Confess.

Wife—Do you mean to tell me you lost $2 at cards? Husband—I don't mean to tell you, but I may as well. You'll find it out anyway.—Philadelphia Bulletin.

NO DISORDERS MARK STRIKE

Political Protest in Belgium Is Peaceable.

THE MOVEMENT IS GROWING

Brussels Dispatches Admit That It Now Looks as if It Would Be Accurate to Describe the Position as a National Strike, Socialists Claiming That Nearly 400,000 Have Responded to Call to Lay Down Their Tools.

Brussels, April 17.—Not only is there no decrease in the number of strikers at any point, but there is a gradual extension of the movement at many places. It looks now as if it would be accurate to describe the position as a national strike.

The strike committee claims today that 173,000 men are on strike. The movement continues to bear the same peaceful aspect as heretofore. The leaders have carried out their promises that there would be no disorders and the presence of troops is apparently unnecessary. Proceedings in the chamber have opened the possibility, though perhaps not a very solid one, of an amicable arrangement being reached. The proposal was advanced by a liberal deputy, M. Lormand, who asked leave to submit a proposition dealing with franchise reform to a committee of the chamber. He did not disclose the details of his scheme, but intimated that it was akin to a national referendum, though not exactly the same. The leave was granted and the outcome is viewed from various lights. Many people expect that it will be without result, while others are hopeful that it will have an effect on the smoothing over of the present agitation.

The session of the chamber was a very stormy one. The premier made the Leftists angry when he represented the strikers as having been coerced to quit work. There was a great uproar which prevented some parts of his speech from being heard, but he was understood to say that when the industrial war was ended the government would consider the electoral problem with the Socialists. Some people interpret this as a significant indication that the government is weakening in its attitude on this subject.

DAUGHTERS OF REVOLUTION

Much Interest in Their Ranks Over Outcome of Second Ballot.

Washington, April 17.—The taking of the second ballot in the election of general officers of the national society of the Daughters of the American Revolution is in progress today. The credentials committee reported that 1,103 of the daughters were entitled to vote.

On the first ballot the election of a president general failed. Mrs. William Cunningham Story of New York led with 556 votes, the necessary number for a choice being 599. Mrs. John Miller Horton of Buffalo ran second with 519. Mrs. Charles Bailey Bryan, the harmony candidate, polled 163 votes.

The delegates voted by states. The first to ascend from the auditorium floor to the polling room were warmly applauded by the various factions as they took their way to the second floor. All factions were represented in the first group of delegates, and all sides took a hand in the noise.

The polling room was reached by a flight of winding stairs. At the foot of the stairway leading to the voting room partisans of various candidates stood handing sample ballots. A big Washington policeman wearing a broad smile stood by to see that the non-voting members of the assembly kept away from the stairway. Lobbying for any of the candidates was forbidden at the top of the stairway. The electioneers confined their activities to the restaurant and the great colonial vestibule. Here they were busy.

Pain Nothing to Him.

Schneider, Ind., April 17.—Hugh Burns, the Demotte farmer who shot his wife and a bystander in the station here, then shot himself, expressed sorrow when told that his wife would probably recover, but that he would die. When doctors were about to remove the bullets from his body he refused to take an anesthetic, saying the pain was nothing to him. Besides two revolvers, a razor and a bottle of carbolic acid were found in his pockets when he was arrested.

Finds Daughter's Body Hanging.

Fort Wayne, Ind., April 17.—Going into the woodshed for the purpose of getting fuel, Mrs. Malinda Cameron discovered her daughter, Mrs. Maud Newton, hanging by the neck from a rope suspended from a rafter. Mrs. Newton had been dead six hours when found. Long continued ill health was the cause of her suicide.

Thought Chickens Were Bewitched.

Laporte, Ind., April 17.—Acting under the belief that the chickens on her farm had been bewitched to do her harm, Mrs. Jane Buntin, a wealthy farmer's wife, armed herself with a hatchet and killed all the chickens on the place. An hour later she was brought to the county jail in this city as a raving maniac.

UNINVITED GUESTS OUTLIVE WELCOME

The Army Is Anxious to Get Rid of Them.

Washington, April 17.—Squarely up to Secretary of State Bryan has Secretary of War Garrison put it to decide what shall be done with the five hundred and more Mexican federal soldiers and Yaqui Indians held by United States troops along the Mexican border. The former federals and Indians came over to the United States at various times recently following defeat in battles between federal and rebel troops. They surrendered to the United States troops and were at once disarmed and held prisoners. Meantime they are eating up Uncle Sam's rations to the tune of about $250 a day, besides diverting a large number of American soldiers from ordinary duty to guard and care for them.

The army wants to get rid of its unwanted guests as soon as possible, but requires permission of the state department before it can turn them loose.

GREAT SYNAGOGUE CROWDED

Distinguished Audience Witnesses Dr. Hertz's Induction Into Office.

London, April 17.—The great synagogue at Aldgate was crowded to witness the induction of Dr. Joseph H. Hertz into the chief rabbinate of England. All the Jewish clergy in the United Kingdom, arrayed in their canonicals, were seated at the reader's desk. The congregation included several members of the Rothschild family, Lord Swaythling, Lord Rosebery, Israel Zangwill and the lord mayor and sheriffs.

Dr. Hertz delivered a sermon based on the text in Malachi: "Remember ye the law of Moses." Afterward the Rothschilds gave a reception in honor of Dr. Hertz.

Brought Brazil to Time.

Washington, April 17.—The suit of the American government against the Brazilian Coffee Valorization committee, which was entered last December to compel the committee to place its store of coffee in New York in the open market in interstate commerce, has been dropped, the demands of the government having been complied with.

Make the Man Who Sells You a Buggy Show You Why

you should buy the one he wants to sell you. Don't buy it just because he tells you it is made of second growth hickory and has a plugless yellow poplar body and full wrought gear. It may have, but if it has he can show you, so you will know beyond any doubt that it is made of the material he represents it to be made of and if he won't show you, you are justified in doubting his word, because any buggy built of this kind of material can be demonstrated in a way that will leave no doubt in your mind as to workmanship and material if it is built by men who know how to build buggies. If you are going to buy a buggy, take the time to visit our sample floor and let us show you how to find out what is beneath the paint on a buggy. We carry a complete line of buggies of all styles and if you are in the market a little time spent in our store will put you in a position to make a wise selection, whether you buy your buggy here or elsewhere. Get what you pay for when you buy your next buggy. There is a way to tell and we will show you how. Remember we sell the buggies that stay on the road longest and we guarantee every vehicle to be just as we represent it to you.

CITY DEATH RATE ABOVE AVERAGE

Percentage in Rushville in January Higher Than Mean Average For Fifth Class Cities.

BELOW AVERAGE IN COUNTY

State Health Board Bulletin Estimates Population of City at 5,001 and County at 19,425.

The health bulletin for January, which has just been issued by the state board of health, estimates the population of Rushville at 5,001. A comparison of the death in the city for January last year and January this year shows a decrease of a tenth of a per cent. It was 18.9 per thousand inhabitants in 1912 and 18.8 this year.

The rate of death in December 1912 was almost twice as great as the next month—33.1 per cent. The total number of deaths in the city in January of this year was eight, and in December, 1912, fourteen.

Under the classification of important ages, only three of the eight deaths are classified. One was under one year of age and two were over sixty-five years. The other ages which are held important are one to four, five to nine, ten to fourteen, fifteen to nineteen.

One third of the deaths in the city during the months were from what the bulletin terms important causes.
One of these was pulmonary tuberculosis and the other two cancer and external causes. Other diseases which the bulletin terms important are other forms of tuberculosis, typhoid fever, diphtheria and croup, scarlet fever, measles, whooping cough, lobar and bronchial pneumonia, diarrhoea and enteritis, cerebrospinal fever, acute anterior polyomyelitis, cancer and smallpox.

The death rate in the city in January was above the average for fifth class cities. The average per thousand was 15.4 per cent and Rushville was 3.4 per cent. greater.

On the other hand the death rate in Rush county for January is below the mean average for the central Indiana counties taken as a whole. The local county rate was 13.3 per cent, and the average for the thirty-three central counties was 14.4 per cent.

This is usually the case, however, that the death rate in the rural communities is lower than in the urban communities. The state for January shows a death rate of fifteen per cent in the urban communities and 12.8 per cent in the rural.

The population of the county is estimated at 19,425. There were twenty-two deaths reported for January as against twenty-seven in January last year. In December, 1912, there were twenty-five deaths.

There was one death between the ages of one and fourteen years, three under one year old and eight over sixty five years old. The others were between ages not listed as important by the bulletin.

Three of the deaths in the county for January were due to pulmonary tuberculosis, one from whooping cough, two from lobar and broncho pneumonia, two from influenza, one from cancer and one from external causes.

"What do the people of Dayton think of John H. Patterson? Well, they think enough of him that if it were possible hundreds of men would gladly serve his sentence in prison.
In fact all of the officials of the Na-did."

HOPE SUN WILL KEEP SHINING

Farmers May Have Opportunity to do Spring Work if Weather Man Doesn't Change Program.

OATS SOWING TIME IS AT HAND

Season For Corn Planting is Almost Here and Farmers Have Nothing Done in Preparation.

Farmers have been looking askance at the weather man because of the program he has had on for the last few weeks, and now they are hoping that he will keep the sun shining long enough so the ground will dry off and they can finish up the spring plowing. In fact, it will be the beginning for many farmers, because very little sod has been turned in Rush county thus far this season even though it is late.

It has been time to sow oats for the past two weeks, under ordinary conditions, but the weather has been only fit for the planting of water lillies. Last year the oats crop was put in late on account of the length of the winter season which did not let go until along in April. This year the sowing of oats has been delayed on account of the wet weather.

There is one consolation however, and that lies in the fact that last summer the oats crop in Indiana was an enormous one in spite of the late sowing. After the seed was put in the ground the summer season came all at once there were frequent alterations of warm rains and hot weather. This brought the oats out in good shape and gave the farmers a bumper crop, although some of the oats was damaged by moulding and sprouting on account of the wet weather during the harvest season interfering with the work.

So if the weather man will only deliver the right sort of goods after the oats is put in the ground things may come out right after all.

The farmers have one cause for congratulation this season and that is the way the wheat looks. The wheat is coming up nice and green, and never looked more flourishing at this time of year. Last year the wheat crop was a total failure, and the farmers plowed up their wheat fields in many places. This discouraged a number of farmers and as a result the acreage of wheat in Rush county this spring is much smaller than for many years, just at a time when the crop promises to be a big one.

The time for corn planting will soon be at hand, too, if the weather man will only stop the sluice gates in the sky. In case the weather turned fair and warmer now it would probably be several days before the ground would be in condition for sowing.

So it is only natural that the farmers should begin to get uneasy.
The late season will injure the chances of the clover, but if conditions settle within the next few days everything will probably be all right.
The ground will not work so easily this spring as last on account of the kind of winter we have had. In the spring of 1912 following the long hard freezes, the ground worked up beautifully. Rainy spring weather is often followed by a long, hot, dry summer, but it is hoped that such will not be the case this year.

HE IS CHAMPION.

Champion egg sucker is the title claimed by Russell Thompson, of Noble township, and by his record made a few nights ago he certainly has good grounds for his claim, says the Shelbyville News. At the Endicott store at Waldron, Mr. Thompson Monday evening won a wager of one dollar that he could suck eighteen eggs within five minutes. After he had gotten himself around the eightteenth egg he offered to bet five dollars that he could suck eighteen more without stopping. The offer was not taken. He now challenges any one to suck more eggs than he in a given time, and any one desiring to make the attempt may call Charles Thompson, Waldron exchange.
